SAFETY FOOTWEAR STANDARDS

The ASTM F2413-11 standard covers minimum requirements for the design, performance, testing and classification of protective footwear. There are 7 protection sections under the standard (see below). Footwear must be tested (3 sample pair for each test), certified by a third party independent testing agency, and must be clearly and legibly labeled inside the footwear.

Impact (I/75): Identifies protection against impact hazards. A 50 lb. weight is dropped from a height of 18" (75 ft. lbf.) onto 3 test samples. A minimum 0.5-inch clearance (men's) and 0.468 (women's) must be maintained on all 3 test samples. Footwear shall also meet compression requirements below.

Compression (C/75): Identifies protection against rolling or compression hazards. Force of 2500 lbs. is applied to 3 test samples. Minimum clearance as above must be maintained on all 3 samples. Footwear must also meet impact requirements above.

Metatarsal (MT 75): Identifies footwear designed to protect the top of the foot from impact. A 50 lb. weight is dropped from a height of 18" (75 ft. lbf.) onto 3 test samples. A minimum 1-inch clearance (men's) and 0.937 inch (women's) must be maintained on all 3 test samples. Footwear must first meet impact and compression test above for toecap.

Conductive (CD): Identifies footwear intended to provide protection to the wearer against hazards from static electricity buildup and to reduce the possibility of ignition of explosive or volatile chemicals. Footwear shall be tested to demonstrate resistance between 0 and 500,000 ohms. Please note: Conductive footwear is not intended to be worn if working near open electrical circuits.

Electrical Hazard (EH): Identifies footwear constructed to provide a secondary level of protection against incidental contact with live electrical circuits. 3 specimens are tested to resist the application of 18,000 volts at 60 hertz for 1 minute with no current flow in excess of 1 milliampere under dry conditions. All 3 specimens must pass the minimum test requirements.

Static Dissipative (SD): Identifies footwear designed to protect against hazards that may exist due to excessively low footwear resistance while maintaining sufficiently high level of resistance to reduce the possibility of electrical shock. The footwear must have a lower limit of electrical resistance of 1 megohm and an upper limit of 100 megohms. If more stringent requirements are needed, please contact our customer service department.

Puncture Resisting (PR): Identifies footwear designed and constructed with a puncture resisting device between the insole and outsole as a permanent and integral part of the footwear. Footwear must have a minimum puncture resistance of 270 lbs. of force.

Under the ASTM guidelines, the protection provided above must be an integral and permanent part of the footwear construction and the footwear is designed to wear over the foot only. Other devices - designed to be worn over the shoe as temporary protection - do not conform to the ASTM standard.

Return Policy

BE 100% SURE THESE SHOES FIT COMFORTABLY BEFORE YOU WEAR THEM...

You have just purchased a superior quality shoe product. We appreciate your business; however, we will not accept returns after shoes are soiled or show wear, other than for manufacture defects in materials and workmanship. If there is doubt about quality, fit, or comfort, take the footwear home and wear them on a carpet in a clean environment.

THERE WILL BE NO REFUNDS OR EXCHANGES ON WORN FOOTWEAR OR NEW FOOTWEAR AFTER 6 MONTHS FROM DATE OF PURCHASE.

Shoe Technology 101

There are many factors that go into making a comfortable safety toe shoe. Material, construction, cushioning and support should all be considered. In order to be sure that your next safety toe shoe for work is exactly what you need, it's important to be informed about the various technologies that go into how a safety toe shoe is made.

ASTM Testing

ASTM F2413 - is the official standard for safety footwear in the United States.

At DiVal Safety our goal is to ensure that all of our offerings meet or exceed industry accepted safety standards. In the United States, the current applicable standard for protective footwear is referred to as ASTM F2413-11 Standard Specification for Performance Requirements for Protective (Safety) Toe Cap Footwear. It defines the minimum requirements for the design, performance, testing, and classification of safety toe footwear. ASTM F2412-11 defines the procedures used to test protective toe footwear to the various safety classifications. All of our safety toe footwear meets or exceeds the ASTM requirements for the type of footwear designated. As a leading supplier in the safety shoe industry, DiVal Safety continues to update styles, safety characteristics and features as customers and industry requirements change.

Toe Types

Steel Toe - Non-corrosive toe caps used in footwear to provide protection for the toe area. Steel toes meet or exceed the ASTM F2413 standard for protective footwear.

Composite Toe - A toe cap made from a non-ferrous elastomeric material, which is light weight and will not conduct heat, cold or electricity. Composite toes meet or exceed the ASTM F2413 standard for protective footwear.

Alloy Toe - Made of lightweight materials like aluminum and titanium, but they're as strong as steel. Alloy toes meet or exceed the ASTM F2413 standard for protective footwear.

Features & Benefits

Slip Resistant - soles designed to provide a higher level of coefficient of friction with the walking surface to improve slip resistance.

Electrical Hazard - safety footwear provides workers a secondary source of protection from live circuits, wires or highly charged electrical equipment. The insulating properties of such footwear are measured under dry conditions and may deteriorate in wet environments and with wear.

Static Dissipating - dissipates static electricity from the wearer's body into the walking surface to prevent static electricity build-up. It also provides some electrical resistance and offers limited protection to the wearer against electrical shock. These shoes are to be used in areas where the generation of static electricity could harm electrical equipment, circuit board assembly, the manufacture of computer chips, or paint application processes.

Waterproof - A combination of water resistant materials and construction which helps protect the foot from getting wet in environments where excess water is present.

Insulated - Thinsulate™ insulation material added to the lining in boots to help keep the foot warm and comfortable in colder environments.
